Dear colleagues,

Welcome to the first Dean’s Roundup. I’ll use this weekly email to make announcements, share thoughts, be provocative, give the heads-up on forthcoming initiatives and importantly, share the Faculty’s successes over the previous week. I won’t necessarily do all of these each week.

Dean’s Roundup will go to all colleagues in the Departments and Faculty and to RPG students, who I am eager to consider as junior colleagues – aspiring academics who will benefit from a view into the weekly life of the faculty.

Let me start by thanking you all for making this first month in office a very enjoyable and stimulating one. I am gradually getting to know colleagues and that means I can start to interact with you and address issues on a meaningful basis.

I mentioned a list of strategic initiatives underway or imminent at the Faculty Board recently so I shan’t repeat myself in this week’s Roundup.

Highlights of the first month for me include:

• The Inaugural meeting of Landscape Students Association (outstandingly organised)
• Praise from Professor Donald Bates, External Reviewer for our third year Architectural students, who returns to Melbourne today envious and worried. Well done students and teachers for impressing him so profoundly
• Discussions with Tris, John and Joshua about their respective community design programmes – I am committed to sustaining this important part of the Faculty’s portfolio
• High praise from REC’s Advisory Council.
• Reviews of the Faculty’s 4 Foundation Courses, which demonstrated to me the high standard of curriculum design in the Faculty
• My visit to Shanghai Study Centre and Fudan University with the VC – the SSC is viewed as a great asset by the University’s Senior Management Team.
• Preparing to join ACP’s Shanghai Study Visit – promises to be a truly impressive learning experience for the students
• The two Housing Conferences at the start of the month – both good platforms for professional engagement and dissemination.

So to this week’s list of Faculty achievements (which may be a little longer than normal since this is the first Roundup). For next week, only achievements learned of or actioned (etc) this week please (ie we’re working a week in retrospect). To all those below: congratulations and thanks for your valuable contributions to the work and profile of our faculty and the university.
